"Tip" of the Month

Very carefully remove the nib with a needle nose pliers and then remove the cap at the back of the pen. Shake out the felt wick and turn it around, reinsert, and put the nib and cap back on. You should get more use out of the pen. Another way is to remove the nib and put a couple of drops of India ink in and replace the nib. Give it time for the ink to flow through the wick, then go back to work. Hope this helps. (from a Facebook hint)

Webster's Word of the Year 2014 CULTURE

Cindy is using the panoramic fold-out page protectors to scrap her son's school artwork! Since the opening is in the middle, she slid the left side in, bent the page protector back, rolled the 18" side of the art back and slid it into the right side of the protector. Magic!
